Tue, 08 May 2018 03:31:00 GMT - History of Cleaver Square (text from signboard in the square) Residential squares with a communal open space proved so popular in 17 th and 18 th century London that they became the capital's most characteristic townscape. The first was Covent Garden designed by Inigo Jones in 1631, and by the 18th century every major development in the West End featured at least one square.
